Report:
- I was able to achieve the majority of the goals I put in place and if I didn't complete them then I was able to large strides in updating the game interface.
  - I was able to begin implementing the colorblind feature for this project, but I think that will be a personal side project for me to complete and build on as I have time and grow as a developer.
- I faced a lot of roadblocks with sessions between the files specifically my old javascript game and the updated php. This posed to be very difficult when attempting to retrieve the score. (Note: I was probably doing it wrong since I was working on no sleep by this point. This might be easier for me to implement without the stress of deadlines)
- If I could go back I would've created a plan and set mini goals for myself to get this done completely in a timely manner instead of working on it when I pleased.

1000/10 Teammate! She coded the entire project herself start to finish.